INV acquired a portfolio of 24 residential properties without issuing equity

 - The average age of the properties was 7.7 years
 - The average occupancy of the properties was 96.1%
 - The Net Operating Income yield on the acquisition cost of ¥14.043 billion was 6.1%¹
 - Acquisition was financed with 5.5, 6.5 and 7.5 year debt at a 1.9% fixed interest rate
 - Post acquisition, the composition of residential properties increased from 69.8% to 75.3% (acquisition cost basis)
- As a result, Invincible's Net Operating Income increased by ¥856 million
- Since this acquisition, INV's share price has more than doubled

- A new syndicated bank loan of ¥20.350 billion (the “Syndicated Bank Facility”) led by Sumitomo Mitsui Banking Corporation and The Bank of Tokyo- Mitsubishi UFJ, Ltd. will refinance the Shinsei Trust loans (¥9.548 billion²) and the existing syndicated bank loan (¥13.212 billion²)

- Debt Service Coverage Ratio³ is expected to increase from 1.9x to 3.4x

New Internal Growth Initiatives

Proactive Asset Management to increase rents

- Overall, 73.9% of INV's portfolio is in greater Tokyo (64.5% in the 23 central wards). INV believes land prices and rents will increase based on the effects of tightening employment, increased corporate profits and increasing household formation
- CIM recently conducted a property-by-property, unit-by-unit review of each of its residential properties, evaluating both current and market rents and the ability to raise rents upon renewal or new vacancy
- This analysis took into account that many of INV's properties have a high occupancy rate and vacant units are quickly occupied
- CIM also noted that the potential new supply in many of its core markets was limited and primarily directed at for-sale residential versus for-rent. Additionally, increases in construction costs should act as a further constraint on new supply
- Based on this strategic review, CIM will assign new rents for both renewals and new leases, in aggregate 1.9% higher than the current rents
- The Bank of Japan's monetary policies with its 2% stated inflation target provides further support for this proactive asset management approach
